

(1x64 min.)

Homosexuals fulfilled in the land of the machos ?

Located near the border with Guatemala, the Mexican town of Juchitán is home to the Zapotec Indians, who have shown remarkable tolerance towards homosexuals. According to a legend, God gave Vicente Ferrer, the patron saint of Juchitán, a bagful of queers. Everywhere he travelled -Colombia, Central America, Guatemala- he left behind a homosexual. In Juchitán, however, his bag came undone, and they all fell out at once...

Festivals and Awards

First prize, International Documentary Competition, Turin Gay and Lesbian Film Festival, Italy, 2004.

Honourable Mention, The New Festival, New York, 2003.

World Sales:
HGagnon Distribution inc • Tel. Canada: 1 514 944 8038
henry@hgagnondistribution.com
www.hgagnondistribution.com

Produced by :

