

Opera Stories

A series of 4 X 48-minute shows comprising operatic excerpts with a modern look.

Opera on screen often includes filmed productions of operatic performances from several opera houses or grandiose films of complete works using elaborate staging and period costumes that serve their own purpose.

Opera Stories is a new way of introducing and presenting opera to the public as a dramatically coherent and viable genre. The series treats several of the major themes or storylines common to much opera, in a visually exciting, imaginative, adventurously contemporary and dramatically relevant manner.

Four programs each with a coherent framework and storyline – shot on different locations - devoted to either a particular theme or central idea. A series of well-chosen operatic excerpts (arias and duets) acts as a dramatic impulse to develop the storyline.
