

Télé-Litté

13 x 26:00

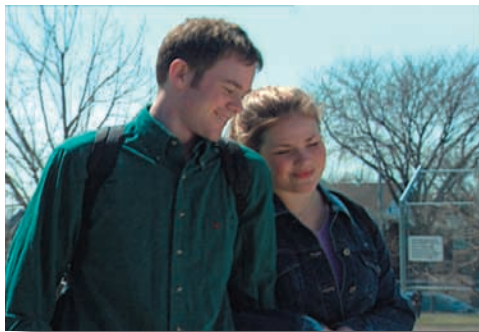

The Télé-Litté Series is a slick package of thirteen 30-minute episodes where literary books are dramatized on screen.

Books provide us with the best stories and television helps us visualize them. Télé-Litté is a marriage of literature and television. The combination of the two creates captivating storytelling and intelligent drama.

The books selected for Télé-Litté are geared toward youth aged 14 to 17 and the general public. The aim is to expose viewers to wonderful and exciting works by Canadian authors. From witty romantic comedies and satirical farces to dramas, mysteries and suspense, each episode is a different novel and the Series covers a gamut of styles and genres.

The strength of the Télé-Litté episodes resides in their ability to delve into the minds of the characters, as good novels often do, making the viewers' relationship to the protagonists more personal, intimate and the stories more candid, honest and at times provocative.

Télé-Litté is a Series with literary substance that will capture the imagination of the youth of today. By combining the magic of the author's words and the filmmaker's visual interpretation of the scenes, Télé-Litté is a new, creative and innovative approach to cinematic storytelling.
